The Opportunity in One Paragraph

Israel has 636,542 registered dogs and zero national marketplace to connect owners with trusted, vetted service providers. The only Israeli platform that tried (Dogiz) left the marketplace in 2023. The premium agency operator (DogMen) is Tel Aviv-only and cannot scale. Today, Israeli dog owners spend hours searching Facebook groups with no price clarity, no trust layer, and no way to book instantly.

Doggy solves this. We are building the first national, on-demand dog services marketplace for Israel — starting with walking and sitting, expanding to a full pet care platform. We have self-funded to MVP with $8,000. We are raising $40,000 to launch, acquire our first 250 walkers, and hit 500 monthly bookings within 90 days of launch.

A. What Dog Owners in Tel Aviv Actually Say

Street Interviews — Tel Aviv Dog Owners

We went to the streets of Tel Aviv and asked dog owners directly: "What is your biggest problem finding dog care?" Below are the three recurring pain points heard across every interview.

RELIABILITY

"I can't find someone reliable"

Facebook is flooded with options but there's nothing to hold onto for the long term. Every time my regular walker disappears, I'm starting from zero.

PRICE & SCHEDULE

"I spend hours just trying to find clarity"

No standardised pricing. No clear availability. I end up messaging 10 people, getting 3 replies, and still not knowing what I'm paying until the last minute.

ON-DEMAND

"I can't find anyone instantly"

When I need someone last minute — a meeting ran late, an emergency came up — there is no way to find help fast. No app, no instant booking. Nothing.

B. The Root Cause — A Fragmented, Unmonetised Market

No platform:

The market operates entirely through Facebook groups and WhatsApp — no booking system, no payment rails, no reviews.

No trust layer:

Any stranger can offer services. No background checks, no insurance, no verification. Owners take all the risk.

No pricing standard:

Every walker sets their own price through informal negotiation. Owners have no benchmark and no protection.

No instant booking:

Finding care requires 30–60 minutes of active searching. There is no on-demand solution in Israel today.

B. The Solution — Doggy

Doggy is Israel's first national on-demand dog services marketplace.

Dog owners open the app, find a verified walker or sitter nearby, book and pay instantly.
Every provider is vetted, insured, and GPS-tracked. Every booking is protected.
Built for urban Israeli dog owners. Designed to scale nationally.

Instant Search Find available walkers & sitters by location in real time	Verified Providers Facial and document verification. Background checks	GPS Tracking Live walk tracking sent to owner during every booking
Secure Payment In-app payment, no cash, automatic commission split	Reviews & Trust Transparent rating system — providers earn reputation	Premium Walkers Ad-free profiles + advanced tools for $15/month

Why Now?

→ Dogiz left the marketplace in 2023:

The only Israeli-built platform is gone. The space is open.

→ 636,542 dogs — all-time high:

Dog ownership accelerated post-COVID and post-October 7.

→ No national platform exists:

DogMen is TLV-only. Facebook groups are the "competition".

→ Post-Oct. 7 trust shift:

Israeli owners now actively demand verified, accountable service.

The Revenue Opportunity Is Exceptional

Israel has 636,542 registered dogs. The math speaks for itself.

Even capturing 10% of the registered dog population:

636,542 dogs × 10% = 63,654 active dogs on platform

At 2 bookings/month per dog × $48.93 GMV per booking
× 20% commission = $623,000 monthly revenue

Why This Is Credible — Not Just a Projection

Dogiz proved it

At peak, 92% of users ordered 3 times per week — averaging $80–100/week per user. The demand is real and recurring.

DogMen survives 9+ years

A premium agency, TLV-only, non-scalable model has kept a loyal customer base for nearly a decade. Price sensitivity is low.

The informal market is massive

Hundreds of WhatsApp and Facebook groups process thousands of dog care transactions daily — completely unmonetised.

Millennials don't stop spending

Urban Israeli millennials treat dogs as family members. Pet spending is recession-resistant and grows with income.

No ceiling in sight

Israel's dog population grew 4.3% YoY in 2025. More dogs, more owners, more bookings — every year, automatically.

The $40,000 seed round is not a bet on whether this market exists.
It is capital to prove we can capture it — and build the infrastructure to scale.

E. Revenue Model — Two Streams

1. Commission per Booking

Rate: 20% per transaction
Walk: ILS 110 ($39.30) → $7.86
Sit: ILS 200 ($71.43) → $14.29
Mix (70% walk / 30% sit):
Avg per booking = $9.79
Month 3: 500 bookings = $4,893

2. Walker Premium

Rate: $15/month per walker
No ads + premium tracking
No cancellation fee
2 free bookings on sign-up
30% = 22 × $15 = $330/mo
75% = 56 × $15 = $840/mo

Note on revenue model:

Early revenue is intentionally conservative. Stream 3 (featured collaborations) adds $500–$2,000/month from month 4+.

I. Why Invest in Doggy — The Case

Capital efficiency proven

MVP built with $8,000 of founder capital. Before asking for a single external dollar, we proved we can build.

Zero direct competition

No national dog services marketplace exists in Israel. Dogiz left in 2023. This is a clean, open market.

Validated demand

DogMen survives 9+ years with a non-scalable model. Dogiz had 92% weekly retention. Demand is proven.

Real pain, real people

Street interviews in Tel Aviv confirm three unsolved pain points: reliability, clarity, and instant access.

Defensible through network effects

More walkers → better coverage → more owners → more walkers. The marketplace compounds over time.

Scalable revenue model

Commission + SaaS premium subscriptions. Low CAC through targeted social ads. High LTV through recurring bookings.
